Wrong Number?

John Markey is considered one of the five richest men in the world. They say he is really a billionaire. A lot of people like to call him, "Lucky Markey." And I will admit that I sort of agree with this. You see - I was his teacher. It was no secret that he was a drop-out from school. His great weakness was simple addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division

"For numbers I got no head," he once said to me. "If a guy makes money so he hires accountants to take care of the books. While he has a good time spending his money."

Now how did he get his start? Actually, he almost didn't get started on the way to making so much money. He had gone to another country to work. Two days after he landed the job, the company went broke. And he was hungry He was down to his last dollar. To eat or not to eat - that was the question? To take that last dollar and take a gamble on the national lottery? That was the other possibility. So he didn't eat He bought the ticket with the number 725 and he won the equivalent of a million dollars - tax free.

"Why did I pick that number?" he remarked to me. "I had a dream. I saw three little chickens on the road. Then again I saw three more little chickens on the road. Three and three add up to seven. My number on the door of my room was 27. So I put the seven before the 25. I bet on 725 and won a million!

"But three and three add up to six." I told him. "So you should have bet on 625."

"Good thing I was dumb on numbers," he said, "I would have lost my last buck instead of making that million."

Clever Dog

It was my first job as a reporter We had a country weekly and I received at that time exactly $22.50 a week. Plus a twenty per cent commission on all the advertisements I could get for a struggling paper. But I was happy since I had the chance to meet a lot of people. Then the Circus came to town.

With my press card, I was given the run of the place. In return they expected a certain amount of free publicity. Which they did get Because in return the newspaper printed handbills for them.

I was fascinated by many of the acts. I liked the brave female lion tamer. She got a good hand when she entered the lion cage and put her two beasts through their act. The five clowns were good for a lot of laughs from the kids. And then there were the side shows.

For these you paid extra money. Like Madam Gozonga who could read the past, the present, and the future all for the sum of ten cents. But there was one side show that was most unusual. A dog that played checkers against a human being. You paid twenty five cents for this opportunity. And there was always a long line of people wanting to challenge their checker skill against that of the dog I figured that the owner had a signal system to tell the dog what moves to make.

After watching ten games, I spoke to the owner of that wonderful canine animal.

"Clever dog, you have there, Mister."

"Not at all," he replied. "He only wins 3 out of 5 games."

Nat The Newspaper Man

When I was a boy, in my home town there was a small newsstand run by a man called Nat. We only knew his first name. But we could not figure out whether or not he had a sense of humor. In those days the daily paper was only two cents. People would stop at his stand, look at the main sheet, but did not buy the paper. He put an end to it with these signs:

"Headline reading - one cent."

"Glance at main sheet - three cents"

"Look at stock market page - five cents."

We often wondered what he did with the old papers. Later we learned he returned them for credit to the dealer. But he put up this sign one day.

Big Bargain! Get yesterday's paper at half price."

You want to know something? He actually sold papers to people who wanted to find something in the paper they had missed by not getting it the previous day.

At one time he was bothered by boys who would try to steal the pennies from his cash box. He put up this sign

"If you steal my pennies, it will lead to a life of crime.

If you need money, I'll lend you a penny to a dime"

It worked. But what we liked best was the way he handled our banker Who handed him a hundred dollar bill for change when he bought a paper.

"I have no change I'll trust you until tomorrow," said Nat.

"But if I die, what then?" remarked the banker.

'Small loss, small loss," was the perfect reply.

Season after season, STRAT-O-MATIC BASEBALL has been sold to thousands of baseball fans exclusively through the mail. But why, you ask? Each year our baseball game is totally revised to reflect precisely the most up-to-date Major League statistics.

STRAT-O-MATIC offers such a current authentic reproduction of real life baseball and such a wide selection of games and individual team combinations, that it is impossible for a retail store to supply our fans.

In business since 1961, the quality and reliability of STRAT-O-MATIC BASEBALL speaks for itself in the fact that we have continued year after year to sell out all our editions.

In our 1971 edition, STRAT-O-MATIC presents you once again with the finest in baseball realism and entertainment. The hitting, pitching, fielding and base running abilities of 480 Major League players is unbelievably reproduced right from the ball park into your home. Leading average hitters such as Rico Carty and Alex Johnson will be among your own league leaders. Bob Gibson the Cardinal's fine pitcher, will be difficult to hit and will allow few walks and home runs.
